

Biltmore Students Technology Policy

What is the technology policy?

Over the past few years, we have noticed that technology has become a huge distraction for our students, taking away from what God wants to do in them and through them during camp week. There are very few opportunities our students have to become unplugged in a world that fights for their attention, innocence and devotion. It is our desire to provide a space where they can encounter Jesus and leave with a deeper relationship with Him.

For that reason; any technology that is brought to camp will result in students being sent home.

The purpose of this policy is twofold; to ensure that our students are freed up to have a week connecting with others and with Jesus. This policy also ensures that your students are not exposed to inappropriate online content from another student.

What happens if my student is caught with a phone?

The student's parents will be contacted and the student will need to be picked up at Anderson University.

How will I contact my student?

We will have multiple easy ways for you to stay connected with your student throughout the week:

- There will be a group message, through the app Telegram, created on the first day of camp week with your students' leader, who will send pictures and updates throughout the week. Please go ahead and download this app now in preparation for camp week!
- There will be prayer updates sent through a texting platform so that you can actively participate in the life change at camp. More information will be sent on this closer to camp.

How will I know that my student is safe?

This year, we have intentionally built in teams of leaders and volunteers to provide more supervision for students throughout Camp Week:

- Leaders will supervise a group of students throughout the week, with intentional check-ins throughout the day.
- A safety team will help supervise students during the day and throughout the night, to ensure students are safe and secure.
- CKM staff will be placed throughout around Anderson University campus to help students transition from one place to another.

- Anderson University also has its own campus safety to help provide a safe and secure environment.
